LANDS (Non-irrigated)

LIVERMORE VALLEY, Alameda County, Cal.

the ROSE BLACK TRACTS, Adjoining the beautiful, tree-embowered town of Pleasanton, are now for the first time offered for sale in small sub-divisions. The soil of the Black Ranch has long been well known as equal to the best in California. That of the Rose Tract is equally good. The land offered is all moist, but never overflows. For Fruit one-half of this land has no superior, as surrounding orchards will attest. It is a deep, well-drained, alluvial loam, which has produced a ton of wheat to the acre in the dryest season ever seen in this State. Two tons of barley to the acre is a common crop on this land.

For Vegetables and kindred crops without irrigation, it has no equal anywhere. Hog Fields, Blackberry, Strawberry and As paragus beds, and a large acreage of pota-toes, beets, carrots, squash and pumpkins, country-fair size, are now growing or being arvested on the land. A common crop of po-toes is 200 sacks per acre; of carrots, 75 to 100 is; other products in proportion. Is un-ualed for the sugar beet. Alfaifa produces

There is not an acre of any but the very best and offered. The tracts have been opened up y wide, graded avenues, and will be sold in mail plots of from five acres upwards.

No better tract of land has ever been subvivided in California. American families are eriving a comfortable support from two or aree acres of this land. "A Veritable Garden Spot of the Earth," where a generous soil and every needed climatic condition yield results which nemorandum-book, with a letter. A liberal leward will be paid if left at this office. The contents of the letter addressed to als brother-in-law, J. Milton Bowers, are quite sensational:

Orty, October 22, 1887.

Dr. J. Milton Bowers: I only ask that you do not molest my mother. Thilie is not responsible for my acts. I made all reparation in my power. I likewise caution you against some of your friends, who knew Cecilia as only husbands should. Among them are C. M. McClennan, C. Eisenschimmet, H. Stern, T. W. Harbom, C. Ackerman, J. H. Hern and others. I caunot think of them all now, but you will find some more of your friends when the memoranda-book and the letter from you to Cecilia is found. I think you will find many of your diamonds changed for Parisian paste. Cecilia lost the money in the stocks. Farewell. Yours,

H. BENHAYON.

It was reported during last night and today that the letter addressed to the Coroner exonerated Bowers from any guilt in conction with the death of his wife, the suicide alleging that he alone was responsible for the crime. The absolute truth or fals ty of this report could not be established las night, but parties who claimed to know as ert that it is true. At all events, the state ment was conveyed to Bowers in his cell, and he nearly fainted when told of it, To-day a gentleman who says he saw and read it declares that it was a confession on the part of young Benhayon that he himself administered the poisonous doses of phosphorus to his sister, Mrs. Bowers, during his constant attendance upon her during her illness. He reproaches himself, and charges that Bowers be relieved of pay-ing the penalty of the crime. It was dated within the past few days. It refers to a memorandum book or sort of diary kept during the last illness of Mrs. Bowers, and confirming in detail all the statements made in the letter of confession.

To-day Captain Lees, Hogan and Detective Hanly are employed in searching for the much-desired memorandum book; for the much-desired memorandum book; also in following up other clues that may, it is anticipated, lead to persons other than young Benhayon being involved in the revolting crime.

The new theory is based on the ground that Benhayon did not hire the room in which he was found dead, and that if about to commit suicide he would not leave a letter to advertise for the lost pocket or memoran-book. ### THE OFFICE AND THE MAN.

Mr. Cleveland, having completed his swing around the second term electioneering circle, is now not called upon to further preach of the dignity and vast importance of the Presidential office. That is all very well at proper times, but one of of criminality rather than of imbecility. Such is the case with the violent utterances of the creature Johann Most and his foreign parasites Skevitch, Grottkau, Schilling, Seib, Graefke and other pestiferous social scoria from the Rhine, the Danube and the Vistula. Nothing but the daugerous temper of American opinion restrains these pernicious offscourings of Europe from singing peans of praise to the Haymarket assassins for their horrible and unparalleled crime. * * * Their declarations of sympathy are not imbecility, as is the case with many wage-workers who are influenced by their wicked preachment; they are manifestations of the spirit of foreign crime that has unhappily gained entrance to this land. The wage-worker has no foe so dangerous as these evangelists of foreign criminality. And there is no greater imbecility than that of the wage-worker who suffers such foreign cathet to delude him with the notion that there is an interest of the workingman to be served by rescuing the wickedest of murderers from the just sentence of extermination. The man who preaches such nonsense is a villain, and the man who pleieves it an inthese is not when on his travels. Morever, he told nobody anything new on that score. Every fairly well-informed citizen, with a grain of love for American institutions, knows, and was taught from childhood, that higher and better, and beyond all other positions, is that which crowns all official station in the Republic of the United States. But it does not follow that when the citizen filling the post "goes out to ride with all the world to see" that he does so as President. Mr. Cleveland did not fish in the Adirondacks as President, or visit the West and South as President. These were not incidents of the Presidential position, and in discharge of no duty did he bait steel hooks for mountain trout, or cast political bait in the

When the chief magistrate of the nation goes out for a holiday run he does it for personal good, physical comfort and mental rest, not to seek and receive public applause, or satisfy public curiosity. An drew Johnson attempted to make a junketing trip a triumphal march, but it proved a dismal failure. The people are not deceived by the adulation of committees who manage receptions, or by decorative arches and set parades "in honor of the President." It was never contemplated in the scheme of our government that any official, high or low, should, because of his station, be- rect testimony that he administered poicome an object of reverence. All the circumit he cannot exalt the office itself, for it stances pointed to the husband as the stands beyond and above the point of exaltation already. Mr. Cleveland's speeches tive on his part, and his very coolness in nearly all contained some reference to the denial of the murder was not an incondignity and leftiness distinction of his office, as if that gave reason enough for the multitude to bow down before its incumbent with uncovered heads. No other fully planned and long contemplated President, except Johnson, has ever presented himself in the attitude assumed by stranger than fiction;" a chief witness the present incumbent.

Every man having a weak spot, we are constrained to believe that this is Mr. Cleveland's. His speeches and the interviews had with him in his recent journeyings all convey the impression that he considered his office to be a coat of mail, an absolute injunction-for the time at tive for his act. Assuming that the paleast-against criticism, to put it strongly: that it was impossible to examine his policy or course during the tour without assailing the dignity and sanctity of the high office he fills. The Presidential position insures none of its incumbents immunity from criticism. Mr. Cleveland must say as much if the question were put squarely to him, but his public utterances and letters are undeniably differently toned. We were constantly reminded that high office was out for a ride, not Mr. Cleveland; that it is one of great dignity, and that it ought to command our profound respect, as if it had not always done so; but possible disassociation by the people of Mr. Cleveland from the office does not appear to have suggested itself to him. We have heard of one President of the United States, who, when unofficially traveling, or visiting, requested that he be addressed as a private citizen, and not as "Mr. President." The objection to Mr. Cleveland's posing as Mr. President when simply appearing as Mr. Cleveland, is not partisan nor superficial. It involves a question of patriotism, and suggests the cultivation of a species of exaltation of the man that, if stimulated much, may have the reverse of beneficial effect upon American institutions, and lead to the use of the "high position" in accomplishing political ambitions, outside of and incompatible with the dignity of the office and the purpose of its creation.

HOPES OF THE FRENCH NOBILITY.

A San Francisco paper publishes in its Parisian correspondence details of the ambitions and expectations of the ex-nobility of France in case of the restoration of the monarchy and the calling of the Comte de Paris to the throne. The account is very circumstantial and indicates very great confidence on the part of the Ducs, Counts, Princes, et als., and of the aristocracy generally, that such an event is probable France has so often been the subject of violent changes of government and sudden revolutions, that the possibility exists that the Republic may be overthrown, but it is highly improbable. The Sacramento member of the State Board of Trade was directed to bring the subject in question before the State Board, at its meeting in San Francisco to-day, and to secure its co-operation in this matter.

The subject of raising a continuous fund for the support of an exhibit, near the depot in this city, of our resources, and for immigration work on incoming trains, was presented, and favorably discussed, and as a result a committee, consisting of E. ## Surprising If We Didn't.

It requires no special effort on our part to sell better shirts for the money than other dealers. It would be surprising if we didn't.

We are much the largest buyers and sellers in this market. Everything hinges on that,

Moreover, it pays to lead. The superiority of our shirts over other brands brings more new customers than we could probably gain in any other Take the Fifty-cent Unlaundried Shirt introduced last May. At times its sale has been so large that we have found it difficult to keep the supply up. It was then, and is to-day, by all odds the best 50-cent shirt in the market.

Our standard goods in Laundried Shirts come at $1 25, $1 50 and $1 75. These are all made especially to our order, and we carry them in sizes to fit all forms. They combine the latest improvements in shirt-making, and in the finer grades are made of the best materials.

An attraction at present is an excellent White Shirt, with narrow plaits, at $1 25.

A Specialty.—Heavy-weight, rough-surfaced, serviceable Overcoats for large men, 44 to 50 chest measure, $10.

Boys' Blouse Suits, plaited back and fronts and of a neat dark brown, $4 One of our best, for ages 4 to 10 years.

Our Way of Looking At It.

"Get as much as you can for your goods," is the usual merchant's maxim. We'd rather do the contrary—drop prices whenever we can. We care more for the steady flow of trade than for profit to-day.

There's nothing so much to our liking as having our store the first in your minds whenever you think of your wants.

Fall and Winter goods are still coming in daily, and there is scarcely a department in the store in which something new may not be found each day.

Express Wagons, Rocking Horses, Dolls and hundreds of other toys intended for the Holidays are already here and in stock. NOTION DEPARTMENT, BASEMENT.
